We just need you to ensure the animal is stable enough for sedation or general anaesthesia. There is a very low risk of nephrotoxicity associated with intravenous contrast, therefore any animals with renal impairment will need to be hospitalised on i/v fluids the night before the CT. This can be done at your own practice if you prefer. We recommend that all animals over 8 years of age have had a blood test and urinalysis within 4 weeks of the CT. This is entirely at your own discretion.

Please identify the part/parts of the body for CT
